

Europe is my home

In 2012 I thought about the possibility of a ballad of mine to represent Spain in the Eurovision Song Contest 2013.

I wrote "Europe is my home" in order to reinforce the idea of a Europe with the spirit of just one nation (such as the United States), but, no doubt, respecting and supporting every country culture and identity within a strong unique core instead of a patchwork of conflicting interests.

In this song a man from the South of Europe and a woman from the North, love each other and (overcoming differences) want to live together and form a family.

My song (as said by the Music company which was handling the subject) was the favourite one till the very end, especially intensified by the fact that Sweden (the host country) had chosen "We are one" as the motto in that Festival and my song was quite on that line.

But TVE had already chosen the singing group who would represent Spain, and these youngsters (creators of their own songs) obviously wanted to present one of their songs instead one from a stranger.

Unfortunately, for one reason or another, they were ranked 25th from 26 participants.

The version here you can listen to and read is still with an acceptable quality, despite the fact that it has been losing some going from one file type to another (*.nwc-> *.mid-> *.myr *.-> *.wmv -> *.ppsx -> *.mp3) in order to get this video with (more or less) human voice.

If any singer considers it appropriate to be included in his/her repertoire (obviously changing the lyrics and, if desired, for just one voice) please contact me and we'll attack the project.
